Art Exhibition at The Boston Home

Dorchester, Mass.—Hyde Park artist Percy Davis recently donated a print of his painting titled “Trinity Church” to “At Home with the Arts,” an art exhibition at The Boston Home in Dorchester. Julie Connelly, Senior Vice President/Community Relations for Citizens Bank bought the piece from Davis during the exhibition. More than 30 area artists submitted their work to the exhibition. The Boston Home is a long-term care facility for adults with multiple sclerosis and other progressive neurological diseases.

The exhibition featured the works of local artists, children, and participants with disabilities. Among the groups submitting artwork from young people were Dot Art and St. Brendan's School in Dorchester, and participants with disabilities, including TBH residents.

“The artwork was breathtaking! The exhibition was also a wonderful opportunity to bring the community together around the arts,” said Florence Rawls, events coordinator at The Boston Home. “It was great to get better acquainted with our neighbors and to show off our recently expanded and renovated facility.”

“The art exhibition was the second in a series of celebrations to welcome the public into our home. It was a great opportunity for our residents to interact with members of the community,” said Marva Serotkin, CEO of The Boston Home.

Founded in 1881, The Boston Home is a 96-bed, not-for-profit, long-term-care facility that serves adults with multiple sclerosis and other progressive neurological diseases. The only facility of its kind in New England and one of a few in the United States, The Boston Home has earned a national reputation for providing progressive long-term care.
